STOP EVICTIONS

at St Ultan's flats, Charlemont St

Dublin's housing crisis is bad enough, but now property speculators are trying to evict 76 year old Essie Keeling and Karl Byrne from their flats.

O'Mahony developers took over St Ultans Flats in 1998 and served an eviction notice on all the tenants.

They want to re-develop the site and sell it off for more profitable ends.

One of the businessmen involved, Thomas McFeeley, is hoping the protests which began on Monday 14th June will peter out so he can evict the couple.

But the Housing Action Campaign has now organised a round the clock vigil to stop the evictions.

This can only work if there is massive support from the people who work and live on the area.

The Housing Action Campaign is appealing for you to do two things:

1 Get down to the protest at St Ultan's Flats, Charlemont St, Ranelagh.

We need as many people as possible to join the rota. If you can give a few hours this will help to show the property speculators that people's lives comes before their profits.

2 Organise for a workplace stoppage or protest.

The government has been crying crocodile tears about the housing crisis but they do nothing. A one hour stoppage by groups of trade unionists around the area would make them sit up and stop the evictions.
